

New!!! Political Science Department offering Bilingual course for Spring 2015

Corruption, violence, and culture: a multidisciplinary approach to the study of the political culture

WANT TO POLISH YOUR SPANISH LANGUAGE SKILLS BUT CAN'T STUDY ABROAD?

ARE YOU PROFICIENT IN SPANISH, BUT WANT TO IMPROVE YOUR FLUENCY AND VOCABULARY?

CHECK OUT THIS BILINGUAL, PASS/FAIL COURSE ON POLITICAL CULTURE, CORRUPTION AND VIOLENCE, TAUGHT BY DR. RODOLFO SARSFIELD, A VISITING SCHOLAR FROM MEXICO.

DO YOU SPEAK SPANISH WITH YOUR FAMILY AND WANT TO TRY USING IT IN AN ACADEMIC SETTING?

Are civil war, endemic violence, corruption, and poverty caused by a country's "political culture?" This seminar explores the concept of political culture, where it comes from, and why it matters. We will rethink the relationship between a country's political culture and the institutions that shape its political and economic development.

The primary language of classroom instruction in this course will be Spanish (English used when necessary). Readings and assignments will be in English. The course is meant to be an opportunity to study an important topic in Comparative Political Behavior in a bilingual setting. This course is offered on a pass/fail basis and is open to students from any major.

Prerequisites: Ability to speak and understand Spanish, a sense of humor and a sense of adventure.

For more information, please contact:

Rodolfo Sarsfield via email Rodolfo.sarsfield@uaq.mx or Dr. Carrie Manning at Cmanning2@gsu.edu